

BBC Newsnight - Lost Words = Lost Childhood

Saturday, 09 December 2017

In BBC Newsnight Robert Macfarlane explains lost words and childhood because children do not spend enough time outdoors.

Through 'Everyone dies, but not everyone really lives' we are introduced to the difference between average life and amazing life. Two questions here are:

(a.) What might be amazing in a life? and (b.) What will ensure we have access?

For (a.), individual answers really matter and we expect parents, teachers and mentors to support informed choice-making. For (b.), we know 'What we do not really love we will not save...'. If we do not protect our world, how may we expect to enjoy amazing experiences in it? In this video Robert Macfarlane helps explain these things.
